How to use this handbook

Employees are expected to read the handbook, understand the standards relevant to their role, and seek clarification from their manager or Human Resources whenever a policy is unclear.

1. Purpose, Scope & HR Philosophy

Qorvexa is a technology-focused organization built around responsible innovation, strong execution and respect for people. Our HR practices are designed to help capable people do meaningful work in an environment that is professional, inclusive, secure and accountable.

Scope. This handbook applies to employees, interns and other personnel where the relevant policy is applicable. Contractors, consultants and vendors may be subject to separate contractual requirements.

Our people principles.

- Build a workplace where performance and integrity are equally important.
- Make decisions using clear, consistent and role-relevant criteria.
- Encourage learning, ownership, experimentation and constructive challenge.
- Protect employee dignity, personal information, company assets and intellectual property.
- Use technology—including AI—responsibly and with human accountability.

Manager standard

Managers are responsible for applying policies consistently, documenting material decisions appropriately, escalating concerns and avoiding retaliation against employees who raise good-faith concerns.

2. Employment & Recruitment

Recruitment. Qorvexa aims to hire based on role requirements, demonstrated capability, potential, integrity and organizational fit. Recruitment decisions should be documented and free from unlawful discrimination or favoritism.

Job descriptions. Roles should have a clear scope, reporting line, key responsibilities and reasonable qualification requirements. Material changes to a role should be communicated to the employee.

Background verification. Where lawful and appropriate for the role, Qorvexa may verify identity, education, employment history, references or other relevant information, subject to applicable law and privacy requirements.

Employment documentation. Employees receive written employment terms describing the role, compensation, working arrangement, notice provisions and other applicable conditions.

Internal mobility. Employees may be considered for internal opportunities based on skills, performance, business need and role requirements.

Recruitment integrity

No candidate or employee should be asked to pay a fee to obtain employment at Qorvexa. Any suspected recruitment fraud should be reported immediately to Human Resources.

3. Onboarding & Probation

The onboarding process is designed to give each new employee the context, tools and access needed to become productive safely and effectively.

- HR completes employment documentation and policy acknowledgement.
- The manager defines initial responsibilities, goals and success measures.
- Required security, privacy and compliance training is completed.
- System access is granted according to role and least-privilege principles.
- A designated point of contact may support the employee during the first weeks.

Probation. Where a probationary period is specified in the employee's appointment terms, performance, conduct, attendance and role suitability may be reviewed during that period. Confirmation, extension or separation will be handled according to the employment terms and applicable law.

4. Code of Conduct

Every Qorvexa employee is expected to act professionally and protect the trust placed in the company.

- Treat colleagues, customers, candidates and partners with respect.
- Be honest in records, reports, timesheets, expenses and communications.
- Protect confidential information and company systems.
- Disclose material conflicts of interest.
- Do not engage in harassment, discrimination, threats, intimidation, fraud or retaliation.
- Use company resources primarily for legitimate business purposes.
- Follow applicable laws, internal controls and security requirements.

Professional communication. Employees should communicate clearly and respectfully, including in chat platforms, email, meetings, issue trackers and code repositories.

Records. Employees must not knowingly create, alter, delete or conceal business records in a misleading manner.

5. Working Hours, Attendance & Flexibility

Working arrangements may vary by team, role and business requirement. The employee's employment terms and team schedule determine the applicable working hours.

Attendance. Employees are expected to be available during agreed working hours, attend required meetings and communicate promptly when they cannot meet a commitment.

Time tracking. Where time records are required, employees must submit accurate records. Falsifying attendance or work records may lead to disciplinary action.

Overtime. Where overtime is permitted or required, it should be authorized and handled according to applicable law and company procedure.

Flexible work. Flexibility may be offered where operationally practical. It is based on role requirements and is not an automatic entitlement.

Core expectation

Flexibility works when accountability is clear: employees should remain reachable as agreed, meet deadlines and maintain the quality expected from their role.

6. Leave & Time-Off

Qorvexa supports reasonable time away from work for rest, personal needs, health, family responsibilities and other legally recognized purposes.

Leave categories. Depending on the employee's location and employment terms, leave may include earned/annual leave, casual or personal leave, sick leave, public holidays and statutory or family-related leave.

Request process. Planned leave should be requested through the designated HR or attendance system with reasonable notice. Managers should consider business continuity while avoiding unreasonable barriers to legitimate leave.

Sick leave. Employees should notify their manager as soon as reasonably possible when illness prevents attendance. Supporting documentation may be requested where permitted by law and policy.

Statutory leave. Where local law provides mandatory leave or benefits, Qorvexa will administer them in accordance with the applicable requirements.

Unapproved absence. Repeated unexplained absence or failure to follow the attendance process may be addressed through the disciplinary framework.

7. Compensation, Benefits & Payroll

Qorvexa aims to maintain fair, role-appropriate and market-aware compensation practices while operating within approved budgets and applicable law.

- Salary and other compensation are governed by the employee's written employment terms.
- Payroll information is treated as confidential personal information and accessed only by authorized personnel.
- Statutory deductions and contributions will be processed as required.
- Benefits may differ by employment type, location, eligibility and plan terms.
- Expense reimbursements require legitimate business purpose and supporting documentation.

Pay queries. Employees should raise payroll discrepancies promptly with Human Resources or the designated payroll contact so that issues can be reviewed and corrected where appropriate.

No unauthorized commitments

Managers and employees must not promise compensation, bonuses, equity, benefits or promotions outside approved company processes.

8. Performance & Career Development

Performance management at Qorvexa is intended to create clarity, feedback and growth—not simply an annual rating.

- Goals should be specific, relevant to the role and aligned with team priorities.
- Managers should provide timely feedback and address significant performance concerns early.
- Employees are encouraged to request feedback and document meaningful achievements.
- Development may include mentoring, training, stretch assignments, technical learning or cross-functional exposure.
- Promotion decisions consider sustained performance, scope, capability, impact and organizational need.

Performance concerns. When expectations are not being met, the manager may establish a documented improvement plan with clear expectations, support and review points. Serious misconduct may be handled separately from ordinary performance management.

9. Remote / Hybrid Work

Remote and hybrid work are operating models, not substitutes for accountability. Eligibility depends on role, team requirements, security considerations and business needs.

- Maintain a professional and secure working environment.
- Use approved devices, accounts and collaboration tools.
- Protect confidential conversations and screens from unauthorized access.
- Follow agreed availability and meeting expectations.
- Report equipment loss, suspected compromise or security incidents immediately.
- Do not allow unauthorized individuals to access company systems or confidential material.

Qorvexa may modify or withdraw a remote/hybrid arrangement when business, security, performance or operational requirements reasonably require it.

10. Information Security, Privacy & Technology Use

Technology is central to Qorvexa's work. Employees are trusted to use company systems responsibly and to protect information against unauthorized access, disclosure, alteration or loss.

- Use strong authentication and never share passwords or authentication codes.
- Use approved software, cloud services and storage locations for company data.
- Do not install unauthorized software or bypass security controls.
- Verify links, attachments and requests for sensitive information before acting.
- Lock devices when unattended and report lost or stolen equipment promptly.
- Collect and process personal data only for legitimate, authorized purposes.
- Do not copy confidential company information into unapproved external tools.

Monitoring. To the extent permitted by applicable law, Qorvexa may monitor or log use of company systems for security, compliance, operational and investigation purposes. Monitoring should be proportionate and access should be restricted to authorized personnel.

Security incident

Suspected phishing, credential exposure, malware, unauthorized access, data leakage or accidental disclosure must be reported immediately through the designated security/IT channel.

11. Intellectual Property & Confidentiality

Qorvexa's technology, product concepts, source code, designs, research, business plans, customer information and internal know-how may constitute valuable confidential information or intellectual property.

- Use confidential information only for legitimate work purposes.
- Share information internally only with people who need it for their role.
- Do not disclose proprietary information to external parties without authorization.
- Follow applicable employment agreements and intellectual-property terms.
- Return or securely delete company information and assets when instructed or when employment ends.

Work product. Ownership of work created in the course of employment is governed by the employee's applicable agreement and relevant law. Employees should disclose potentially significant inventions, code, designs or research developed for Qorvexa through the appropriate process.

Third-party material. Employees must respect licenses, copyrights, open-source obligations and other intellectual-property rights when using external material.

12. Equal Opportunity, Anti-Harassment & POSH

Qorvexa is committed to a professional workplace in which people are treated with dignity and without unlawful discrimination or harassment.

Equal opportunity. Employment decisions should be based on legitimate role-related factors and applicable law. Qorvexa does not tolerate unlawful discrimination.

Harassment. Harassment may include unwelcome conduct, bullying, intimidation, discriminatory behavior, sexual harassment or other conduct that violates applicable law or company standards.

POSH. Where the Indian Prevention of Sexual Harassment of Women at Workplace framework applies, Qorvexa will maintain the required mechanisms and processes, including an Internal Committee where legally required. Complaints will be handled through the applicable formal process.

- Reports are handled as discreetly as reasonably possible.
- Employees must cooperate honestly with investigations.
- Retaliation against a person who raises a good-faith concern or participates in an investigation is prohibited.
- Knowingly making a malicious or deliberately false complaint may be addressed under applicable law and policy; a complaint that is not substantiated is not automatically malicious.

13. Conflict of Interest & Gifts

Employees must avoid situations where personal interests could improperly influence—or reasonably appear to influence—business decisions.

- Disclose significant actual or potential conflicts to the manager and/or HR.
- Do not use company information or position for personal gain.
- Do not participate in a hiring, procurement or evaluation decision involving a close personal relationship without disclosure and appropriate safeguards.
- Do not accept cash or cash-equivalent benefits from vendors, customers or candidates.
- Reasonable business hospitality may be accepted only when lawful, modest, infrequent and not intended to influence a decision.

Where a conflict cannot reasonably be managed, Qorvexa may change reporting lines, responsibilities, approval rights or other arrangements.

14. Social Media & External Communications

Employees are free to maintain personal social-media accounts, but they should not imply that personal opinions represent Qorvexa unless authorized.

- Do not disclose confidential, customer, employee or security information.
- Do not publish unreleased product, financial, technical or strategic information.
- Do not impersonate Qorvexa or claim to speak on behalf of the company without authorization.
- Use respectful language and avoid content that could create workplace harassment or unlawful discrimination.

Media and public statements. Requests from journalists, analysts, event organizers or other external parties seeking an official company position should be directed to the authorized company representative.

15. Grievance, Whistleblower & Ethics Reporting

Qorvexa encourages employees to raise concerns early. A concern may relate to harassment, discrimination, fraud, conflicts of interest, security incidents, financial misconduct, policy violations, unsafe conditions or other serious wrongdoing.

Reporting channels. Employees may raise concerns with their manager, Human Resources, designated compliance/ethics contact or another authorized reporting channel. Where an issue involves the manager, employees may bypass that manager.

Good-faith reporting. Employees will not be retaliated against for making a genuine report or participating honestly in an investigation.

Investigation. Qorvexa may review concerns through interviews, records and other appropriate evidence. Investigations will be handled by authorized persons and information will be shared on a need-to-know basis.

Outcome. Where appropriate, Qorvexa may take corrective, preventive or disciplinary action based on the findings and applicable law.

16. Health, Safety & Workplace Wellbeing

Qorvexa aims to maintain a workplace that is reasonably safe, respectful and supportive of employee wellbeing.

- Follow workplace, laboratory, electrical, travel and emergency-safety instructions relevant to the role.
- Report hazards, accidents and unsafe conditions promptly.
- Do not intentionally disable safety equipment or controls.
- Managers should take reasonable steps to address repeated workload or workplace concerns.
- Employees should maintain professional boundaries and respectful conduct.

Where an employee needs a workplace adjustment or support related to a lawful workplace need, they may contact Human Resources to discuss available options.

17. Disciplinary Process

Qorvexa seeks to resolve issues fairly and proportionately. Depending on the circumstances, action may range from coaching and written warnings to suspension or termination, subject to applicable law and the employee's terms.

Examples of serious concerns. Fraud, theft, deliberate data leakage, serious security violations, harassment, violence or threats, falsification of records, serious conflicts of interest, intentional damage to company property, or repeated material policy violations may result in significant disciplinary action.

Process. Where appropriate, the employee may be informed of the concern and given an opportunity to respond. The company may investigate, review evidence and determine appropriate action.

Fairness. Disciplinary decisions should consider the seriousness of the conduct, available evidence, prior relevant conduct, role responsibilities and applicable law. Not every situation requires the same response.

18. Separation, Resignation & Exit

Employees who resign should provide notice in accordance with their employment terms and applicable law. Qorvexa may also end employment in accordance with applicable contractual and legal requirements.

- HR confirms the separation process and final working date.
- Company property, credentials and equipment must be returned as instructed.
- Access to systems may be modified or disabled as part of the exit process.
- Outstanding expenses and other eligible amounts are processed through the applicable payroll/finance process.
- Confidentiality and intellectual-property obligations that survive separation remain applicable.

Exit feedback. Qorvexa may invite departing employees to provide feedback. Participation should be voluntary unless a legal or contractual requirement applies.

19. AI & Responsible Technology Use

As a technology company, Qorvexa recognizes AI as a productivity and innovation tool. Employees remain accountable for work produced with AI assistance.

- Use only approved or appropriately assessed AI tools for confidential or personal data.
- Do not upload secrets, credentials, customer data, source code or sensitive employee information into public AI services unless expressly authorized.
- Verify important AI-generated facts, code, analysis and recommendations before relying on them.
- Review AI-generated code for security, licensing, correctness and maintainability.
- Do not use AI to make prohibited or discriminatory employment decisions without appropriate human review and lawful processes.
- Clearly disclose material AI assistance when required by a project, customer, regulator or manager.

Human accountability. AI may assist with drafting, analysis, research, coding and automation, but responsibility for business decisions and released work remains with the responsible employee and authorized manager.

20. Policy Governance & Employee Acknowledgement

Policy ownership. Human Resources owns this handbook and coordinates periodic review with relevant business, legal, security and leadership stakeholders.

Updates. Qorvexa may revise policies when business requirements, technology, organizational practices or applicable law change. Material updates will be communicated through appropriate internal channels.

Questions. Employees should contact Human Resources when they need clarification rather than making assumptions about a policy.

Employee acknowledgement

I acknowledge that I have received access to the Qorvexa Employee HR Handbook. I understand that I am responsible for reading and following the policies applicable to my role, together with my employment agreement and applicable law. I understand that this handbook may be updated from time to time.
